CAR BUYERS PROTECTION ACT

SEC. 1. Title.

This act shall be known and may be cited as the “Car Buyers Protection Act.”

SEC. 2. Findings and Declarations.

The people of the State of California find and declare as follows:

1. Federal law makes it illegal for new car dealers to sell unsafe, defective vehicles to new car buyers, after an auto manufacturer has issued a safety recall, until the safety recall repairs have been performed. However, there is no similar federal law to protect used car buyers from auto dealers who sell unsafe, recalled used vehicles.
2. Consumers who get used vehicles from auto dealers deserve the same protection from unsafe, recalled vehicles as consumers who get new cars. The public has a strong interest in ensuring that vehicles sold by auto dealers for operation on California highways comply with federal safety standards and do not pose an unreasonable risk to public safety.
3. In 2013, trade associations that represent new and used car dealers in California opposed legislation in Sacramento, SB 686, that would have made it illegal for them to sell, lease, rent, or loan unsafe, recalled used vehicles to consumers, unless the safety defects have been repaired.
4. Federal law requires auto manufacturers to provide the safety recall repairs for free to any owner, including auto dealers.
5. For years, it has been easy for auto dealers to find out if a specific used vehicle has an open, unrepaired safety recall that needs to be fixed prior to sale. That information is readily accessible online, or by calling the manufacturer’s toll-free number, or by contacting a local dealer who sells that brand, and providing the vehicle’s identification number (VIN).
6. Current law does not provide enough protection for victims of identity theft at car dealerships. There is no prohibition against auto dealers’ hiring employees who been convicted of identity theft, fraud, or forgery, for positions where they will have access to car buyers’ personal financial information.
7. Unscrupulous auto dealers’ practices hinder the ability of many car buyers to purchase newer, more fuel-efficient, safer vehicles, often trapping car buyers in a cycle of debt and depriving them and all Californians of the benefits of a cleaner, safer vehicle fleet.
8. Unscrupulous auto dealers often engage in “bait and switch” financing. They lure consumers into signing contracts on favorable terms. Then later, after the car buyer drives the vehicle off the car lot, the dealer tricks the car buyer into coming back and paying more. If the consumer refuses to sign a different contract for the same vehicle, that would increase the amount the consumer has to pay, the dealers sometimes refuse to return the consumer's down payment or traded-in vehicle. Some dealers threaten to repossess the car, fail to submit registration documents to the Department of Motor Vehicles on time, or threaten to report the car as "stolen," if the consumer objects to paying more.

9. Auto dealers commonly charge car buyers an extra, hidden amount for a car loan. This added charge, called a dealer "markup," is usually split between the dealer and the lender who purchases the retail installment contract or loan from the dealer. The markup adds to the profits the dealers and lenders gain from increasing the interest rate consumers pay, above the rate car buyers qualify to get, based on their credit. According to the Center for Responsible Lending, in 2009, car dealer markups cost California car buyers over $2.5 billion. The Center also found that the added markups increased the risk of falling behind on the loan payments.

10. Current law in California requires "buy here pay here" auto dealers to provide at least a 30-day / 1,000 mile warranty on every used car they offer for sale. However, other dealers who sell used cars, including higher-priced vehicles, are allowed to sell used vehicles without providing the same protection. Some other states mandate that all car dealers provide warranties on used vehicles, regardless whether or not the dealer is a "buy here pay here" dealer. California's used car buyers deserve to get at least a basic level of warranty protection, regardless of the type of dealer that is selling the car.

11. Many auto dealerships that sell vehicles in California are owned by dealership chains, some based in other states, that have annual revenue in the billions of dollars and are publicly traded on Wall Street.

SEC. 3. Purpose and Intent.

The people of the State of California do hereby enact the Car Buyers Protection Act. This measure is intended to accomplish its purposes by protecting Californians who get new or used vehicles from licensed dealers, in the following ways:

1. Make it illegal for auto dealers to sell, rent, lease, loan, or otherwise transfer ownership of unsafe, recalled used cars to consumers, unless the safety recall repairs have been performed;
2. Improve protections for victims of identity theft perpetrated at car dealerships;
3. Reduce the risk of identity theft occurring at car dealerships;
4. Improve protections against "bait and switch" financing at car dealerships;
5. Prohibit dealer markups based on the interest rate or finance charges, which increase the cost of loans to consumers; and

6. Require all auto dealers to provide at least minimum 30-day / 1,000 mile warranty protection on all used cars.

SEC. 4. Section 11713.27 is added to the Vehicle Code, to read:

(a) Dealers, as defined in Section 285 of the Vehicle Code, are prohibited from including any provision in a contract for the purchase or lease of a vehicle that would allow the dealer to cancel the contract or change the terms after the buyer has signed the contract, and the buyer has taken delivery of the vehicle. After a buyer has signed a contract for the purchase or lease of a vehicle, and taken delivery of the vehicle, dealers are also prohibited from engaging in high-pressure tactics with the intent, in whole or in part, to induce the buyer to waive any rights conferred under this section, or sign a subsequent contract for the same vehicle that would increase the cost to the buyer. For purposes of this section, the term “high-pressure tactics” means any of the following:*

- (1) Threatening to repossess the vehicle;*

- (8) Engaging in any other tactic with the intent, in whole or in part, to induce the buyer into entering into a subsequent contract for the same vehicle with terms that would increase the cost to the buyer.*

(b) After the buyer has signed a contract for the purchase or lease of a vehicle, the dealer shall accept payments from the buyer in accordance with the terms of the contract, unless the dealer previously assigned the contract to another entity for value.

(c) Nothing in this section limits or alters a dealer's remedies against the buyer when the buyer commits actual fraud, provided the fraud was not induced or aided and abetted by the dealer or the dealer's employees.

(d) Nothing in this section limits a dealer from agreeing to a buyer's request to rewrite the terms of a contract to reduce the cost to the buyer or provide other benefits to the buyer.

SEC. 13. Severability.

If any provision of this measure or its application to any person or circumstances shall be found to be unconstitutional or otherwise invalid, that finding shall not affect the other provisions or applications that can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to that extent the provisions of this measure are deemed to be severable.

SEC. 14. Conflicting Initiatives.

(a) In the event that this measure and another initiative measure or measures relating to motor vehicle consumers appear on the same statewide election ballot, the provisions of the other measure or measures shall be deemed to be in conflict with this measure. In the event that this measure receives a greater number of affirmative votes, the provisions of this measure shall prevail in their entirety, and the provisions of the other measure shall be null and void.

(b) If this measure is approved by voters but superseded by law by any other conflicting measure approved by voters at the same election, and the conflicting ballot measure is later held invalid, this measure shall be self-executing and given full force of law.
